

CHANGE IS SOUGHT IN RURAL CREDITS SYSTEM

Plan on Foot to Make Farmers' Notes Fall Due on Different Dates

Present bankers, fertilizer dealers and politicians have been approached by the Georgia Chamber of Commerce to ascertain the feasibility of changing the system of rural credits now in effect. The farmers of the state, instead of maturing all their notes at once, could be arranged to fall due in equal parts in September, January and March.

The Georgia chamber of commerce has accordingly sent out a letter to bankers, agriculturists and consumers asking them if they answer the following questions: Is it practicable for bankers, fertilizer dealers, supply merchants and politicians to agree, with the former, to agree jointly as follows: To have notes, taken in payment, matured in three, one-third in October, different dates, one-third in January, one-third in March?

To submit an offer is a good first step. This twin bed set consists of two spreads, 72x100 inches, and two bolster rolls to match. Material is French lawn, with tape borders, handsomely embroidered in white or pink.

Second, to establish such a system could be established, and, if so, would it tend to strengthen the cotton market by giving it greater scope of time in which to sell.

PLAN PERMANENT SCHOOL FOR RELIGIOUS TRAINING

Sunday School Workers Discuss Question at Meeting in Kimball House

Plans for a permanent school of religious instruction were discussed Tuesday at a meeting of Atlanta's leading Sunday school workers in the Kimball House.

Hugh H. Harris, director of the Wesley Methodist church, was in charge of the project, which is the outgrowth of the school of methods being used at the First Methodist church. It contemplated one session each week for the next twelve weeks of an evening class, with a vacation period on the winter season, and laying a foundation for the resumption of work next winter.

"That religion is life and that religion must be lived through the church means that the church must grapple with the large social problems of the world," said Mr. Harris. "It is his belief that Dr. Henry F. Cone of Chicago, addressing the conference, has given us a definite program for the resumption of work next winter."

"The church cannot confine itself to the things that formerly were called ecclesiastical," said he. "It must meet the needs of the world." About 200 women attended the public session of the mothers' conference Wednesday evening. Helen Dickey delivered a special lecture on the service that mothers can render to their children. She dwelt particularly on modern methods of rearing boys and girls who are sound morally and physically.

If you have any doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (Confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. A letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

Governor Commutes Sentence of Man Condemned for Murder—Gives His Reasons

THE hanging cases were passed on by Governor Sladen Thursday morning. In each case the defendant was under sentence to be hanged Friday.

The sentence of I. B. Hall, of Tifton, was commuted to life imprisonment. Executive clemency was refused in the other two cases, calling for hanging of the condemned, ordering that they be given the chance to attend to the affairs of his department and stay out of the news.

Councilman Frank Reynolds immediately moved that the resolution be read on the table.

"It will do the fire department no good to have a row between the chief and the mayor to be urged along," said he. "It is up to us to drop it. That is the discipline of the fire department, than anything we could do."

Councilmen Breckinridge and old Councilmen Ashley and Councilman Colored, Alderman McDonald, who was in the chair, also expressed the opinion that the members of the commission should try to meet over instead of stir up trouble.

Consequently Councilman Lee got no second to his motion to adopt the resolution, whereas the members of the commission, who had voted to have it, were passed with only the vote of Councilman Lee to the contrary.

The case was referred to the Board of Control, which has been called at the instance of Councilman Lee, and his original purpose was to introduce a resolution to the city council to give Chief Cummings for insubordination, but the Board of Control, after hearing that a resolution requesting the chief would be sufficient, the matter in which the Board of Control is interested, was referred to the Board of Control.

Members of the Board privately agreed to Chief Cummings' opinion that he came last Sunday was rather too late to allow him to catch the incoming train for North Carolina; and he was asked to leave town Saturday morning, so that he would not be present when the Board of Control voted down the motion.

ANOTHER LIGHTING PLANT
THREATENED BY MASSEE

Ordinary McAlpin, of Chatham County, asks Attorney General's Opinion in Matter

McAlpin says he will not approve 11 cents rate if it is allowed

Apparently the greatest obstacle in the way of the proposed electric light plant, which the Georgia Public Service Company of Macon are asking the state railroad commission to authorize to start railroads, is the question as to whether the proposed construction in the contract agreement, between the Georgia Public Service Corporation and the Georgia Railway and Light Company.

This clause, according to Mr. McAlpin, states that the company will not charge more than 10 cents a kilowatt, with a 10 per cent discount for the first 100 kilowatts.

Mr. McAlpin's opinion is that the law for new leases, the state law for new leases, does not permit such a high rate.

PROGRESSIVES IN GEORGIA PLAN FOR SERVICE BOARD

Non-Political Organization Discussed at Informal Conference Wednesday Night

Plans for educational campaign in Georgia on the principles of the Progressive party were broached at an informal conference in the Atlanta hotel Wednesday evening by a committee of Atlanta's state president. About fifty Georgians, mostly from Atlanta, attended their interest in their program by attending the conference.

Mr. Ryman, an Atlanta attorney, secretary of the state Progressive committee, said: "The movement is not organized, it was non-political entirely." It was given a political complexion by two men who were discussing it at a moment from the business in old and Mr. Ryman, sole officer having charge of the organization of a progressive service board in this state to be established in Atlanta, New York in educational work for the betterment of the people, did not discuss and to forward their success not through a change in officeholders, but through the use of the opportunities that officers of the opportunities for service that lie before them.

The plan is a non-political division of the Progressive party, explained Jake Jones, state chairman of the Atlanta men, according to Mr. Ryman's statements. "It does not condone the party's platform. The educational work will be done directly and to conditions in Georgia and correct misunderstandings on the aims of the party."

RECALL IS MISUNDERSTOOD,

The recall that is now being discussed is not for instance, we do not believe every decision of a court should be recalled, but we do believe that when a court has passed on a constitutional question, the proprietors of the constitution should have the privilege of declaring whether they think it is right or wrong as a precedent."

Mr. Ryman was appointed chairman of a committee to suggest details of organization of a progressive service board in the Fifth congressional district. The other members of the committee were named as Mr. George Dewan, Alexander T. Hamilton, of Rome; J. T. Dainger, of Monroe; W. R. Morrison, of Dahlonega; and E. B. Scott, of Gainesville.

This resolution will be voted upon at another meeting to be called in about a month.

Opponents of the government of Georgia and the government of the United States were criticized severely by Bernard Stoller, one of the speakers. The speaker pointed out the factional differences in the Democratic party, but, however, he is a board-citizen of Atlanta, needs no commission of government," he added.

Mr. Ryman, spokesman of the state ticket of the Progressive party, said: "General H. M. Dorsey attended the meeting, and C. W. Harmer, he explained. He was there when we in Atlanta were discussing our way."

Mr. McClure left for Washington on Thursday to confer with party leaders and national committee.

Swift's "$30,000 Baby"
May Get in Court Again

Mother's Action Willing Infant to Her Sister May Be Contested by Husband or His Relatives

The death in Washington of Mrs. Jacques Bradley Swift, actress and former wife of C. Thomas Swift, of Atlanta, will be followed by a dispute, at any rate, by legal action to regain from her relatives the custody of three-year-old Lena" Swift, the $30,000 baby.

The action of Mrs. Swift in willing just before she died the child to her sister, Mrs. Henry Wendell, of Washington, was not validly entered.

"It was given a political complexion by two men who were discussing it at a moment from the business in old and Mr. Ryman, sole officer having charge of the organization of a progressive service board in Atlanta, New York in educational work for the betterment of the people, did not discuss and to forward their success not through a change in officeholders, but through the use of the opportunities that lie before them.

The action was compromised only two weeks ago. Mrs. Swift, retaining the services of attorney Elmer Wright, requested him to file suit to make no statement other than that he would be unable to make any effort to regain his child before any action was taken by young Swift or his relatives.

In famous case, Swift asked that the custody of his daughter be awarded either to himself or to his lawyer, Louis Swift, attorney, and that he be relieved of responsibility of monthly alimony, which would have been $1000 a month.

He also asked that he be relieved of the care of the young woman.

"I cannot say at this time whether or not I will make any statement in regard to my grandchild," she said.

Mr. Ryman, attorney for the custody of his grandchild, said:

"The action was compromised only two weeks ago. Mrs. Swift, retaining the services of attorney Elmer Wright, requested him to file suit to make no statement other than that he would be unable to make any effort to regain his child before any action was taken by young Swift or his relatives.

Mrs. Swift's sister, Mrs. Wendell, who has willingly accepted her sister's trust, has agreed to let the child remain with her until the hearing on account of violation of the parole provisions. The hearing is set for January 16.

CONFERENCE PLANNED.

It is said some member of young Mrs. Swift's family will journey to Washington with the woman for a conference with Mrs. Wendell and it is possible that she will be retained by the Deputys Clerk John Dean Stewart, of the U. S. Court, a salaried counsel to the U. S. Government, who will be present at the hearing.

Both appointments are expected to be confirmed by council. Others named to positions in the tax office were W. O. Ferguson, William Boarden, J. S. Ferguson and H. H. Miller.

Wednesday followed an operation in the Providence Hospital, where he was admitted with a $30,000 "baby" to settle out of court.

BEAUCHAMP IS GIVEN OLD JOB IN TAX OFFICE

George Beauchamp, for many years chief clerk in the city tax assessor's office, has been given his old job at the meeting of the new tax committee Wednesday and J. T. Collier, his successor, a salaried counsel to the U. S. Government, will be present.

Both appointments are expected to be confirmed by council. Others named to positions in the tax office were W. O. Ferguson, William Boarden, J. S. Ferguson and H. H. Miller.

Nature Still "Casts Out Devils"

Through Your Body and Through the Bowels, Liver and Kidneys.

If you don't think they're REAL Devils, just let them accumulate, as they do, in the body, and you'll see what a broad of demons appear, such as worms, maggots, fleas, lice, ticks, bacteria, palpitation, disappearance of the liver, enlargement of the liver, typhoid, malaria, etc.

They are found for these Devils to get in their work, because you sweat out in summer must be done, and the Liver, bowels, kidneys and the Liver dams or clogs with these Devils.

PODOLAX RELEASES THE DEVIL.

There's one thing these devils can't stand, and that is Podolax. It is great, clear and di-lating. When it's done, the body is clean, and when it's gone, they disappear like mist from the earth.

THE EVENING STORY

MILLY

Copyright, 1914.
By W. Warner

Milly faced the blow calmly, proudly. It was a common happening in her life, and she had learned to bear it without a husband to run away. When times were good and there was plenty of money, she had been able to live comfortably with a wife and several children. When times got bad and work was scarce, man, quicksilver, went home day after day to a reproachful wife who had no time to think. It was easier to run away and to send back a card from the next state saying, "I'm sorry, but I can't afford to pay you any more money." At least some of them went out. Some others stayed at home, known as street urchins of that neighborhood.

She had been surprised that Andy was different. Of course, they quarreled once in a while. And perhaps she had been surprised to find out that she didn't care as the others did about the neighbors' opinion of her. She remembered that Addie around the corner hadn't expected her to leave him, and had run away, leaving her with three children, one six weeks old, and two more could. Addie had gone about in a way that the neighbors had known Brad's intentions long before. It had not been difficult to find out, either, because perhaps they had known that Andy-Brad had been a swindling job receiver, and she calmly considered the future. There were the two children, and the house was still there, old, Artie two years. She would have to go to work. She shrank from the close contact with the old family where she had worked before marriage, but she had to do it. She had to take the children along practically all the time that they were awake.

"I thought he had deserted me."

"I thought he had deserted me."

ne saloon, informed her. "He said he couldn't get work here and the charity institutions won't help you quicker than you can walk without your man." Milly's face had flushed. Chatterer had written stories.

She reached out and took his hand.

"It's hard," she said. "We're all here together. Hard? Of course, all the people here that are dependent on slack season and rush building have been scared. It seemed, for those first few months, that we'd never recover. The first winter they had had enough to keep them warm, but not enough to pick them up. The second winter they had been pinched. More prosperous times came, but the children grew, but when one lives in a raw flat of rooms one doesn't juggle with the finances. And the baby had to be fed, and the baby had plenty. The third winter Andy had to leave town. He'll probably be the last of his kind. Yet he refuses angrily when Milly asks him to go to work. He says he can't stand it, he's not fit to live with one, he declared. And then he goes, when they began at once to plan for the winter.

Not a penny was wasted. But it happened that summer to waste or save. The and the baby was now the oldest, were born in the same year. People didn't build much. Money was short, and Andy declared. But they didn't know that. They got through the summer, and then the winter, and then came with disconcerting suddenness, with the first snow, the winter of '14, Andy tramped the streets in search of odd jobs.

"Now Milly would have to look. She set her lips grimly. "I won't forgive him. I won't let him go. I know he wouldn't mind starving—with him and I know that I'll starve likely without him."

Addie dropped in for a sympathetic visit, and the baby was born. "You'll get a job," she said. "He'll come to the door to do the same," she said. Her eyes were harder than when Brad left, and she was determined to do better, better send the boy to the Hubert asylum.

"I won't!" cried Milly fiercely. "Why, I'd rather die than give one of them up."

"You tell the Juvenile Court woman," fiercely, "that I can tend to my baby, and I'll take care of him."

"She'll not adopt him," fiercely.

"Oh, paw," said Addie. "I'd get him adopted if I could."

"I'll do it," said Addie. "I'll get him adopted if I can."

"I won't!" cried Milly fiercely. "Why, I'd rather die than give one of them up."

CITY WANTS OWN EXPERTS TO TEST NEW CREMATORY

Tells Sale Agent the Department
Must Set Date and Name Experts

If a test of the new crematory is to be made, the construction department must be asked to furnish the engineers to do the work. Such was the opinion of John J. Jr., sales agent of the Destructor company of New York, who appeared before the Atlanta City Council yesterday and recommended that the city test the new $20,000 plant.

This does not interfere with the request of the city council for Mayor James G. Woodward to appoint an engineer to make a test of the new plant, which is to be built at Federer's.

For other firemen were hurt but are expected to recover. The property loss

Miss Mary Whiting, a well-known beauty doctor of Detroit, Mich., recently gave out the following statement:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home, at very little cost, that will dissolve any grease, protein, its fats, and make it soft and glossy. To half a pint of water add 1 oz. of bay rum, 1 oz. horseradish, 1 oz. camphor, and 1 oz. oil of cypress. This mixture can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the shiny sheen appears.
This will make a gray hair person look twenty years younger. It is also fine to promote the growth of hair, to remove dandruff, and scalp disease, and is excellent for dandruff and falling hair." (Advt.)
